One woman seeks truth. Now she must challenge a corrupt President — and America is at stake.

Madison Padgett is fighting to save her dying Kentucky coal town. But she's blocked by Conrad Vega, the young, idealistic Democratic senator determined to stop global warming. When violence explodes, Madison must re-examine her deepest beliefs while unraveling a twisted conspiracy that drives her toward the ultimate confrontation. If she fails, America—and all it stands for in the world—will be destroyed.

Exciting, provocative, and unabashedly liberal, POWER IN THE AGE OF LIES is an action-packed political thriller. Enter a world where heroes believe in truth, and fight for the rights of all.

PRAISE

"audacious and so very topical."

—Gary Phillips, editor of The Obama Inheritance

"Power in the Age of Lies calls to mind The Man in the High Castle.

Verant has given us a stirring and disturbing book, and a lot to think about as 2020 looms."

—Greg Olear, author of Dirty Rubles

"Verant has opened the door on an entirely new type of political thriller: deftly told, timely, and terrifyingly real."

—David Pablo Cohn, author of Heller's Tale

REVIEWS

"A gripping, compelling story - almost impossible to put aside."

"A progressive call to fantastic and frightening fiction. Verant has created a raft of compelling characters and thrilling situations that will make fans of thrillers rejoice."

"I loved this book! It grabs you right away and pulls you into a fast paced almost dystopian political world, not unlike reality. The writing is gripping and humorous."

"The research is fascinating, the characters are believable, and the story is unforgettable. Put aside Patterson, Baldacci and Grisham and give Verant a look."
